Biographical or Historical Information

---

Hugo Oehler, born in 1903, was an American Communist leader. In the 1920s, Oehler worked as a successful trade union organizer of textile workers in the South and of mine workers in Colorado. After becoming a declared Trotskyist in 1930, Oehler was elected to the National Committee of the United States Trotskyists in 1931. He was later expelled from the organization for criticizing the "French Turn," or the entering of Trotskyists into the Socialist Party. Oehler soon became a co-founder of the Revolutionary Workers League, or RWL.

In 1937, Oehler went to Spain to observe, evaluate, and direct the efforts of radical left-wing parties in the Spanish Civil War. During his time in Spain, he was instrumental in establishing communication between the RWL and Spanish revolutionaries. His pamphlet, Barricades in Barcelona describes the armed clashes in May 1937 between the Barcelona police and the revolutionaries and workers. The pamphlet urges the Spanish left to develop a unified and informed Marxist party in order to advance the proletarian revolution. After the May struggles, Oehler was arrested and expelled from the country.

After WWII, the RWL declined and disappeared by the 1950s. Throughout the rest of his life, Oehler faded from politics and died in 1983 at the age of 80.

Correspondence, 1936-1937

Date: 1936-1937

Scope and Contents

This series contains letters organized chronologically from February 3, 1936 to November 30, 1937. Many of the letters are written from Rosalio Negrete (various sources show that this was the Communist Party name of Russell Blackwell) in Spain to Hugo Oehler in the United States. The letters relay the development of the Workers' Party of Marxist Unification (POUM) and other revolutionary groups in Barcelona. Other letters, written by Oehler, are addressed to the members of the Revolutionary Workers League (RWL) and assess the development of the international workers' movement. The letters in this series focus mainly on professional matters but also include personal information such as travel details and daily life.

Reports, 1936-1938

Date: 1936-1938

Scope and Contents

This series contains reports written by Hugo Oehler and/or Russell Blackwell, organized chronologically from December 8, 1936 to February 9, 1938. The reports, often formatted as letters addressed to "Comrades," relay the developments of and conflicts between Spanish left-wing groups such as the POUM, the National Confederation of Labor (CNT) and the Iberian Anarchist Federation (FAI). The reports assess the political environment of the Spanish Civil War through the lens of American Communists. Many reports explain the developments in Spain in the context of global conflicts and the international workers' movement. This series includes observations on the Armed Insurrection in Barcelona in May 1937, as well as Oehler's report on the left-wing anarchist group, the Friends of Durutti.
